This piece comes from the Guitar Basics series for beginners, written by two London-based composers and teachers, James Longworth and Nick Walker. It hints at the Spanish idiom of much music written for the guitar. The composers say about it: 'We were inspired to compose this piece by reading the famous story of the old and proud Spanish knight Don Quixote. Wearing a battered suit of armour, he sets out in search of adventure across the plains of La Mancha on his plodding and faithful horse Rocinante.' The metronome marking, dynamics and note on beat 1 of bar 25b (the second-time bar) have been added by the composers for this edition.
