Arranged by Richard Wright

C. Carson Parks
(1936–2005)

With a relaxed feel ♩ = c.100

The musical score is written for piano and guitar. It is in 4/4 time and one flat key (Bb). The tempo is marked 'With a relaxed feel ♩ = c.100'. The score is divided into three systems, each with a vocal line (I) and a guitar line (II). The guitar line features a repeated rhythmic pattern of eighth notes and quarter notes, with dynamics ranging from mf to p. The vocal line consists of a melody line with lyrics. The score includes measure numbers 4, 7, and 10.

'Somethin' Stupid' is a song in which the singer regrets spoiling a date 'by saying something stupid like "I love you"'. It was written by the American singer Clarence Carson Parks, and recorded by him as a duet with his wife Gaile Foote – as Carson and Gaile – in 1966. The following year, a recording by Frank Sinatra with his daughter Nancy went to the top of the American charts. There have been other versions since then, including one by Robbie Williams and Nicole Kidman in 2001, a No. 1 hit in the UK. This arrangement presents the melody line with a guitar accompaniment in a repeated rhythm. In the exam, the candidate should play part I.
