

Andante

A:2

from Symphony No. 94 in G, Hob. I/94, second movement

Arranged by Alan Bullard

Joseph Haydn

Andante ♩ = c. 69

The score is written for piano and consists of five systems of music. The first system begins with a piano (p) dynamic. The second system features a forte (ff) subitissimo (sub.) chord. The third system includes a mezzo-forte (mf) dynamic. The fourth system features a forte (f) dynamic. The score includes various musical notations such as notes, rests, and fingerings.

The great Austrian composer Joseph Haydn (1732–1809) visited London twice during the 1790s. There the last 12 symphonies that he composed, the so-called 'London' symphonies, all received their first performance to great acclaim. The second of the 12, No. 94 in G (1791), was nicknamed the 'Surprise' Symphony soon after its first performance due to the sudden fortissimo chord for full orchestra that wakes up a drowsy audience during the quiet string theme of the slow movement. That theme, together with its 'surprise' in b. 16, is given here in a piano arrangement.

© 2010 by The Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music