This dance-like tune is shared between the hands (the middle C in b. 2, for example, belongs to the theme). From the upbeat to b. 17, a new theme is heard in alternating hands. Finally, at b. 26 the original theme returns, now with the surprise of a chromatic, poco stringendo conclusion (that is, gradually getting a little faster).

Joan Last was an English musician who taught the piano for many years at the Royal Academy of Music, London.
