

Frederic Chopin, "the poet of the piano," composed for piano almost exclusively. The son of a French father and a Polish mother, he lived in Warsaw, Poland, where he received his musical education. Like many other great composers, he showed remarkable talent as a child. He wrote music at an early age and played in public when he was nine years old. Later, Chopin lived in Paris where he met many other renowned musicians. The waltz theme presented here is adapted from a Chopin waltz. Play it gracefully, but with spirit.
