

19. THE SPIDER DANCE

(TARANTELLA)

Tony, an Italian boy, was bitten by the deadly poisonous spider, the tarantula. He would surely die unless Mother did something quickly. The village musician played her magic tune while Tony was made to dance and dance until he fell, covered with perspiration. Tony didn't die, and the music and dance (now called tarantella) came to be regarded as a cure for the tarantula bite. Actually, it wasn't the music or dancing that cured Tony, but his perspiration drove the poison from his body.
